

EAVESDROPPING

Learning to pray from those who talked to Jesus

Daily readings suitable for Lent or any time of the year

HENRY MARTIN

'A key that unlocks old wisdom in a new way.' PAUL KERENSA

OUT NOW

EAVESDROPPING

Learning to pray from those who talked to Jesus

Daily readings suitable for Lent
or any time of the year

available from

DARTON · LONGMAN + TODD

'Lord I believe, help my unbelief!' is something we might say when praying. We know that it is not original. Someone else said it long before we were born. We picked it up, while eavesdropping on a conversation in the Gospels. This is a line from a worried dad speaking to Jesus, who responded by healing his son. It delighted Jesus then, so we adopt and adapt it for our own needs, as we pray now.

Every day in Lent this book eavesdrops on a different 2000-year-old conversation asking what can be gleaned from then, which might enrich our praying now. Each chapter begins with words said to Jesus; a question, a comment, a demand, an instruction or even an insult. Some were well received, others not so. We consider Jesus' responses then and return to the present by asking, 'How does this help us with prayer today?'

Henry will be coming to Christchurch Brunswick
Sunday 10th February at 7pm
and will be selling signed copies for only £11 each (rrp £12.99)